Funding Biblical Higher Education

DR. RYAN RALSTON

America is a very generous nation. Our nation donated $281 Billion in 2016 with almost 20% given for education. Over $40 Billion is given away annually by Americans to fund higher education. Americans believe in being generous and supporting education! Of course, secular education grabbed the lion's share of these donations. I would like to share with you in this article four reasons why I believe you should support Biblical higher education.

First, we are training the next generation of preachers, teachers, and missionaries that will have an inextinguishable Pentecostal experience whose standard is holiness. As stated in our mission statement, Heritage Seminary's goal is to equip students with professional competence, academic distinction, and an informed Biblical worldview so they will be set apart as a people whose experience is Pentecostal, whose standard is holiness, and whose goal is excellence in all things for the Glory of God. It is our goal at Heritage to ignite the passion within young people to minister, so they can both enhance their local churches and spread the love of God abroad.

Second, we are endeavoring to preserve and promote our Pentecostal Holiness distinctives. At Heritage, we believe it is crucial for students to embody these core values and understand how to defend their personal statement of faith. These values are definitive of our beliefs and provide guidance for faculty, staff, and students of Heritage Seminary.

Third, Heritage Seminary is combating the culture of tolerance and moral decay. We are equipping our students with the knowledge and faith necessary to engage a culture that has become hostile for standard bearers of truth.

Fourth, the kingdom of God is the only institution designed that allows you to keep what you give away! Literally, it is an eternal investment! Your generosity will fuel the vision for the future while giving stability to the present.

Recently, I heard Bob Russell speak to a group of educators and he shared two things he knows is true when you are working with people: people are not content with the ways things are and people resist change. I found that very humorous! I also know how very accurate it is!

I teach a leadership class at Heritage. During the semester, I teach a lesson called "The Conflict of Vision." I share about how casting a vision is exciting to an organization. It is exciting and thrilling! In fact, most people are eager to hear about a vision for up making this a reality? We must determine how much, if anything, we are going to sacrifice to see the vision become a reality.

This is the 'conflict of vision.' Reality occurs when the followers decide the vision is worth the sacrifice.

What is the cost of not supporting Biblical higher education? That cost is astronomically higher than any sacrifice I can make to see the following statement come true: Our desire is to equip Pentecostal Holiness men and women with the necessary skills and passion to pursue their calling in the field of Christian ministry.

Whether it is donating to the girls' dorm, funding a scholarship for students or including Heritage in your estate planning, would you seriously consider funding Biblical higher education?

their respective group. After the vision is cast, the cost associated with the vision must be established. This is where the 'conflict of vision' initiates. The conflict arises when the details are given on what the vision will cost. I ask myself, how much am I willing to give
